

“ Our vision:
to provide trusted multilingual communication ”

DESKTOP PUBLISHING

MULTILINGUAL LAYOUT SERVICES

Effective translation involves more than formatting foreign text. We believe the look and feel of your materials play an important role in communicating your message. Our desktop publishing (DTP) staff is skilled at integrating translated text with culturally appropriate design, while preserving the integrity of your organization's brand.

LAYOUT

Our DTP team includes industry veterans who are experts at working with complex languages and character sets. They strive to format our clients' translations to match their original collateral. Depending on the language and culture of your target audience however, there may be a host of visual and type elements to consider: text expansion, proper hyphenation, line breaks and the appropriate color and imagery choices. We may also need to make typesetting allowances for right-to-left languages and complicated characters and fonts.

We use the latest industry design software—an extensive list of applications that allows us to service all our clients' file formats. Normally, we format translations with the same application that was used to lay out the source document. However, in some cases we may use an application that is better suited to a target language's fonts and other requirements.

QUALITY ASSURANCE

All of our formatted material undergoes rigorous quality control and proofreading by our QA team. Not only do we scrutinize the mechanics of the layout—fonts, headers, footers, paginations, margins, etc.—we also review the text to make sure it matches the approved translation.
